A Hotel with a History

Masindi Hotel is Uganda's oldest hotel having been built in 1923 by The East Africa Railways and Harbours Company. Masindi was the gateway to the hinterland of Africa where goods and produce from the Northern Congo and Southern Sudan found their way to European markets. Cargo was shipped across Lake Albert, trucked from Butiaba up to Masindi Customs Sheds. From Masindi, goods were trucked on to Masindi Port on Lake Kyoga where it was shipped down to Soroti and then by railway to Mombasa.

The hotel has been host to several famous visitors. Ernest Hemmingway's made a legendary trip to the district, where he was involved in two plane crashes in the space of a week. The first at Murchison Falls and the second at Butiaba airstrip. Hemmingway stayed at Masindi Hotel whilst recovering. Humphrey Bogart and Catherine Hepburn stayed at Masindi Hotel during the filming of "African Queen" at Masindi Port.

Masindi Hotel was taken over by the Government after independence, and remained a part of the Uganda Hotel chain for nearly 30 years. In the year 2000, we decided to renovate and re created much of its former charm for you to enjoy.
